

To whom it may concern, on the morning of March 17th I was traveling on the Badgerboro rd taking kids to school at approximately 7:35am. When I went around the corner there was a town truck backing in the middle of the road at an angle. The road was wet and I had to break quickly and firmly enough that my abs traction control came on to avoid him. As he continued to keep backing towards the corner he clearly wasn't looking so I had to blow my horn to get his attention and avoid being hit. It is very shocking to me that on such a corner the workers wouldn't have parked where they could be seen or be using some type of sign. The younger worker is who was backing the town truck and the older was outside of the truck, neither could be seen until making the turn.
